to listen. Chip Beck, who shot a 59 in the 1991 Las Vegas Invitational, is a devoted disciple, as is New Zealander Grant Waite, who recorded a final-round 60 in the 1996 Phoenix Open.

Davis Love Jr., the highly respected teacher who died just months after analyzing these pictures for GOLF DIGEST, noted: "Mac has an outstanding golf swing that is in part a reflection of his excellent conditioning. He has perfectly coordinated his key parts—and the parts fit superbly. As good as these pictures are, it's a shame the readers can't sense the beautiful way Mac's swing flows together. It has such an outstanding rhythm and symmetry."

O'Grady wasn't born with such fluidity. Gary McCord, a longtime friend and admirer, once recounted: "Mac's got a great swing and he's a great ball-striker, but he wasn't always that way. He started from scratch and built his swing, and he was able to do that because he's smart, diligent and has a tremendous quest for knowledge. I told him once that he had to learn patience. Damned if he didn't drive behind elderly people for the entire day. I don't know if it taught him patience, but it almost got him arrested twice."
